Communications:

- News are reporting on the RCMP statement posted yesterday stating that it has not provided banks a list of donors who contributed to the “Freedom Convoy” fundraising efforts, rather the intelligence they provided to financial institutions included the identities of “influencers in the illegal protest” and owners and drivers of vehicles who did not leave the protest zone. In a statement, the RCMP outlined how it followed the Emergency Economic Measures Order under the Emergencies Act, and said that the federal police force is now “working with the banks to build a process to address the accounts that were frozen.”
- A Radio-Canada article following an interview with D/Commr. Duheme and A/Commr. Arcan also stated same.
- Ottawa protest organizer Tamara Lich denied bail. Tamara Lich, one of the key organizers of the anti-vaccine mandate protests in Ottawa, has been denied bail. An Ontario court judge issued the decision in Ottawa this morning, saying she was not convinced Lich would not reoffend. Canadian Press (CTV News)
- A separate bail hearing is scheduled this morning for fellow protest organizer Pat King.
